

Abstract of the Disclosure

A method for increasing the measuring accuracy for a limited path is described, where a map of the actual geometric path that is stored in a memory is obtained in a "learning phase." In addition, a method for better controlling a camshaft offset in a combustion engine is described.